CV review

Titles, content, metrics and consistency across your CV, portfolio and LinkedIn

Mathieu Nauleau · 3 November 2026 · Based on: the 4-version CV workbook, mathieunauleau.com (5 pages read today) and your earlier chats. LinkedIn was not read (sign-in wall), so that part of the consistency check is still open.

BOTTOM LINE

- The risk is inconsistency, not thin content. Your public portfolio gives different numbers than your CV for the white-label app and AH Compact. Fix this first: the Didomi posting says it may use AI to flag inconsistencies.
- A different header title per CV is fine. Keep job titles and dates identical everywhere. They already are on the CV.
- Don't add experiences, swap them. All four versions fill the A4 page. Product: add the Price tool. Design System: lead the Ahold block with the system work and give each Eneco bullet a result.
- Remove your age from the CV and from the site's About page. Say "Amsterdam, moving to Paris" instead.
- You have enough numbers (about 20). Missing: baselines, one validated output metric for Design System, one outcome for the Price tool.
- Training: same facts in every version. Soft skills: swap two and move "Professional English" to a languages line.

Answers at a glance

#	Question	Verdict	Do this
1	Different title on the CV than on LinkedIn?	Keep	Header title = target role. Job titles stay identical. Use the posting's wording for Design System roles.
2	Add more experience (Sales flow, Price tool, governance, adoption)?	Swap	No new bullets. Price tool replaces one Ahold bullet in Product. Design System gets a new lead bullet at Ahold.
3	Age on the CV?	Remove	Delete "34". Replace the line with location and mobility. Remove it from the site too.
4	Enough metrics?	Enough	Reconcile conflicting numbers, add baselines, add one metric per version.
5	Same training for every position?	Keep	Same list. Optionally reorder by role.
6	Same soft skills for every position?	Tweak	Swap two. Move English to a languages line.
7	Drift between workbook, LinkedIn and portfolio?	Drift found	2 high, 4 medium, 5 low (see 7). LinkedIn still to be checked.

1 Is it a good idea to have a different title on the CV?

Yes for the header title. No for job titles.

- What gets compared is the job titles and dates. Both CV versions show "Senior Product Designer & Design System Lead" at Eneco with the same dates, and your site's DesignOps page says "Design System Lead", Jan. 2026 – now. That is consistent.
- The header title is a target. It tells the recruiter which role you are applying for and is what screening tools match to the posting. Changing it between a Product and a Design System CV is normal.
- LinkedIn and the site both say "Senior Product Designer". That matches the Product CV word for word. It doesn't contradict the Design System CV, because its Eneco line says Design System Lead.
- Refinement 1. "Senior Design System Designer" understates a lead role. Use the posting's own wording ("Design System Lead", "Design System Designer") per application. The title row is locked in the workbook; unlock the sheet to change it.

- Refinement 2. Consider the LinkedIn headline "Senior Product Designer · Design System Lead", so either CV matches your profile.

2 Are both positions good enough, or add more experience?

Structure is right. Swap bullets, don't add them.

- The page is full. Every version fits exactly one A4 page. Each added line removes another.
- Most of what you list is already on the CV. The Design System version covers AI, rollout and adoption, governance and DesignOps at Eneco. Extra bullets would repeat them. Sharpen with one result per bullet instead.

Version · role	Change	Instead of	Needs from you
Product · Ahold	Add the Price tool bullet (draft below).	The design-system bullet (18 teams → 20+ products).	One outcome: time saved, user adoption, decisions made faster. None is on file yet.
Product · Eneco	Keep the sales flow first. Add one fact to the same bullet.	Nothing.	Only true facts: users tested, your part. Keep "Involved in".
DS · Eneco	Shorten the sales-flow bullet to a clause. Credit "initiated the weekly adoption dashboard and drift detection" inside the rollout bullet.	Half of the sales-flow bullet.	Confirm "initiated" is accurate. Add one validated output metric (see 4).
DS · Ahold	New first bullet on the system: multi-platform, B2C and B2B, advocacy to management, adoption tracking. Merge the app and AH Compact bullets into one line.	The anti-food-waste bullet, and one product line.	One scale figure (see 7). A result for "advocating to management": a decision, budget or headcount.

Draft, Product · Ahold: "Sole designer on an internal pricing tool for Albert Heijn Merchandising & Sourcing: ran a 2-day discovery workshop with its users (then working in Excel) and shipped the MVP with 2 developers (Aug.–Dec. 2025). [add one result]"
Draft, DS · Ahold: "Design System Lead in the final year: took the system multi-platform and expanded it to [X] B2C and B2B products, advocated it to management and tracked adoption. [add one result]"

Facts in the first draft come from your earlier notes: sole designer in a team with 1 project manager and 2 web developers, 2-day discovery workshop, MVP live. Dates fall inside your Ahold dates (2021–2025).

3 Is adding your age to the CV good practice?

No. Remove it. It brings risk and no benefit.

- France: age is a prohibited criterion in hiring. French guidance strongly advises against stating it, and the Défenseur des droits has found age to be one of the leading discrimination grounds in employment.
- Netherlands: Robert Walters says a date of birth should never be on a CV. Dutch job-seeker guidance lists name, address, email and phone as the required details, with no birth date, photo or nationality.
- Some older Dutch guides still list birth date and nationality. Treat them as outdated: no employer needs either to screen you.
- What to put instead: "Amsterdam, moving to Paris" (the English header currently reads "34, French, live in NL"; the French one already says "Amsterdam, mobilité Paris"). As a French citizen you have the right to work in the Netherlands, so the nationality adds nothing.
- The site repeats it. The About page says "34 years old". Remove it there too, or the CV edit achieves little.

4 Do you have enough metrics and impact numbers?

Yes, in quantity. The gaps are quality and consistency.

- Count: about 20 figures across the CV. Eneco: +20% conversion, 0.2% → 38% adoption, 7 teams, 2 brands, 2 platforms, 15% time saved. Ahold: customers and revenue for two brands, +8% and +13% on AH Compact, 1,700 tonnes, 18 teams, 20+ products.
- Conflicts with public numbers. Two of your Ahold results disagree with your own portfolio (see 7). Resolve these before adding anything.
- Missing baselines. "+20%" has no starting point, and an earlier chat quoted 40% → 55% for the same flow. "+8%" and "+13%" don't say against what.
- Estimates are labelled well. "Estimated … (internal survey)" is the right wording. Add the number of respondents if you have it.
- Design System lacks an output metric. The DesignOps case study notes mention 25 components (up from 2), 3 designers onboarded, 4 workshops, 5 squads aligned. They were marked "to validate". Add one, once confirmed.
- Product lacks an outcome or research metric for work that is yours alone. The Price tool is the best candidate.
- Keep off the CV: the ~10% developer-time saving. You noted there is no solid figure behind it.

5 Can you keep the exact same training for every position?

Yes. Keep the same facts.

- Training is a short, dated, verifiable list. Changing it per position invites inconsistencies with LinkedIn.
- Optional: reorder by role. Product: Product Management & Strategy, Data-driven design, Design for complexity first. Design System: AI & Agents and Leadership first.
- If you need a line, cut the oldest item first: the 2021 masterclass.
- Check one wording: your About page says you "hold a PM certificate", while the CV says "Product Management & Strategy, 3 months (2023)". Use the same term in both.

6 Can you keep the exact same soft skills for every position?

Mostly. Swap two and fix one misplaced item.

- Current list: Pragmatic, solution-oriented · Organization and delegation · Facilitating a variety of workshops · Collaboration with PMs and Tech · Professional English.
- "Professional English" is a language, not a soft skill. Move it to a languages line, for example French (native), English (professional).
- "Organization and delegation" has no proof elsewhere on the CV. Replace it with something your bullets support: for Product, "Prototyping to align teams"; for Design System, "Advocacy with stakeholders".
- Keep "Facilitating workshops" and "Collaboration with PMs and Tech". The Price tool workshop, the DesignOps workshops and your site's philosophy back both.
- Soft-skill lists are rarely decisive. Keep the effort small: two swaps per role family, no more.

7 Drift between the workbook, LinkedIn and the portfolio

Drift found on the portfolio. LinkedIn not yet verified.

Level	Item	CV workbook	Portfolio (public)	Action
High	White-label app results	Gall&Gall +11,000 customers, + €180K in 3 months. Etos +54,000 customers, +€570K in 6 months. (Design System FR tab: +160 K€.)	200K+ app customers in a year, both brands. 90K+ € extra revenue, both brands, 6 months after release.	Same project, different numbers. Pick the true ones and fix the CV or the site.
High	AH Compact results	Conversion +8%, revenue +13% in one year.	Conversion +15%, revenue +23% (MVP to latest, 1 year), +30K active users, 3 → 16 cities.	Align both, or state the different measurement on each.
Medium	Design system reach	18 technical teams, then 20+ products.	Home page: "One system to unify 30 apps". Your note for this report: 30+ tools.	Choose one scale figure and use it everywhere.
Medium	Eneco figures	+20% conversion. Adoption 38%.	The DesignOps page has no numbers, so no conflict there.	Earlier notes say 40% → 55% and 42%. Confirm the current values.
Medium	Public vs private figures	Ahold and Eneco figures on the CV.	The site publishes Ahold figures. Your LinkedIn text was written without any numbers because they were "not public".	Decide: public (then align everything) or private (then pull them from the site).
Medium	Roles	Ahold: "Lead designer". Eneco: "Senior Product Designer & Design System Lead".	White label: "Principal designer". Eneco: "Design System Lead" (DesignOps page), "Senior product designer" (About).	Use one wording per role on all three.
Low	Password in the header	The header shows a portfolio password next to the URL.	Home and DesignOps pages open without one. Only the private section is protected.	It prints on every CV you send. Use "password on request" or a link per application.
Low	EN vs FR revenue	+€180K in three tabs, +160 K€ in Design System FR.	n/a	One value in all versions.
Low	Age and location	34, Amsterdam.	About: 34 years old, Amsterdam.	Consistent, but remove the age (see 3).
Low	Dates	Ahold 2021–2025. Eneco 2026 – now.	Compact Apr 2021 – Aug 2022. White label Jul 2022 – Dec 2023. DesignOps Jan 2026 – now.	Consistent. The white-label page says both "1 year" and "8 apps in 8 months".
Low	Not on the site	Anti-food-waste app (1,700 tonnes), Safran Cabin.	Absent.	Can't be cross-checked there. Make sure LinkedIn carries them.

WHAT I COULD NOT CHECK

- LinkedIn: the profile sits behind a sign-in wall, and the browser extension for your own Chrome was not connected. Your earlier chats show the About and Eneco text was drafted without numbers, so a CV with numbers is not drift by itself. The title, dates and the Ahold entry still need a live check.
- Pantry case study: the page is blocked to automated readers by the site's own rules. Only the home page line ("30 apps") was read.
- Private case studies: not opened.

To close the LinkedIn gap: sign in to LinkedIn in the Claude desktop browser pane, or paste your About and Experience text into the chat. I will update this table.

Action list

1. Before the next application Decide the true White-label and AH Compact numbers. Fix the CV or the site.
2. Before the next application Confirm conversion (+20% vs 40% → 55%) and adoption (38% vs 42%). Set the EN and FR revenue to one value.
3. Before the next application Remove the age from the CV and the About page. Change the header line.
4. This week Decide whether the portfolio figures are public. Handle the password in the header.
5. This week Product: add the Price tool bullet with one result. Design System: write the new Ahold lead bullet once you have chosen the scale figure.
6. Then Swap two soft skills per role family and move English to a languages line. Reorder training by role.
7. Then Share your LinkedIn text so I can finish the drift check, and update the workbook with the agreed changes.
